

N. A. GARNER, S. L. ROSSER, Sworn for the State. We know J. E. Duffy and together we talked with Mr. Duffy, at the office of the Solicitor General, a short time after the murder of Mary Phagan and Mr. Duffy told us that when his finger was cut at the National Pencil Company, that he had some waste and that he immediately wrapped it around his finger and held the waste and the injured finger in his uninjured hand that he was absolutely sure that no blood could have escaped to the floor; that he immediately went to the door of Mr. Frank's office and from there to some hospital. We were at the time of this statement discussing as to how the blood spots had gotten on the floor of the factory, and the fact that it had been suggested by someone that the injury of Mr. Duffy's hand was probably the source of the blood. This Mr. Duffy denied. We talked with Mr. Duffy on the evening of April 23, 1914, at his home in Atlanta and Mr. Duffy then stated that Mr. Dorsey, the solicitor General had not paid him any money, but that the Solicitor General did O.K. his subpoena, so that he could draw his compensation as a witness allowed by law, and that after the solicitor approved his subpoena that he (Mr. Duffy) went to the County Treasurer and got the money, about $7.60.
